ASGC Summer Social Skills Camp 2009
for children ages 6 thru 18 with a diagnosis of Autism, Asperger's or PDD

Effective social skills are critical to emotional and cognitive development. Social skills deficiency are the central feature of those with autism spectrum disorders. Adequate social skills are the unwritten curriculum that children with autism often do not master. It has been found that when children do not have good friendship skills, the negative effects are long lasting and affect cognitive social and emotional development .

Participants in the ASGC Social Skills Summer Camp will have opportunities to practice such skills as problem solving, conflict resolution, respecting the ideas of others, cooperation and team work through direct instruction. Positive social interactions promote healthy relationships, a sense of belonging and well being. ASGC Social Skills Summer Camp's goal is for children with autism spectrum disorders to further develop social skills taught and practiced at camp into their daily life. The Summer Camp will also provide educational support as identified through the camper's Individual Education Plan (IEP).
